You might also need: Designers have only two ways to edit a webpage: you have to either pay thousands of dollars for a web design service, or do it yourself. But there's another option! If you're a graphic designer, web designer, photographer, or editor, you can make money by editing images. You won't be a full-time graphic designer (unless you're lucky) but you will make a fair amount of money editing webpages for other web designers. Editorial Services There are several ways you can get a project for editing an image. Some websites offer projects for photographers to be taken on as a hobby. Many offer higher payment rates for experienced and professional editors or graphic designers. You can visit different websites and find what you're looking for. Here are some of the editors and designers that could be worth paying for projects to get your career started. Editorial Editing Designers You can find designers who create websites by visiting websites that specialize in graphic design. You can either post your portfolio of work or showcase work you've worked on. You can find designer jobs on websites like Textbroker or Creativebloq. These websites generally offer high paying rates. Pens are an extremely helpful tool for drawing. You can add a physical size to text by typing in the bottom portion of the Size box. Text will automatically fill the entire box. However, beyond the basics, Photoshop comes with a complete library of over 18,000 free fonts. The library is a good source of images for brushes and you can get started with learning how to use the Brush tool for paint like effects. Type size To choose a font size for your text, type the desired size into the Size box and select OK. Typing in the Size box will display a row of icons representing the various type sizes available. You can also press and hold [Shift] to quickly cycle through the different type sizes. Because the default size is 16 points, most text will be adjusted to 16 points unless a smaller font is specified. Fine-tuning a text size If your text is too small, you can adjust the font size by typing in the Size box and deselecting the "Use All Font Sizes" option (you can access the option through the Select All icon above the box). You can also type in a font size that is either smaller or larger than the original font size. If you want to make the font smaller, type in a negative number. If you want to make the font larger, type in a positive number. Changing text color Type in a color name or number to change the color of the text. The color choices are presented below the Size box. The color of text you type into the box is displayed in the Type menu. Once you have typed in the color name, press the [Tab] key to exit the color name menu and return to the Type menu. Alternatively, you can press Enter to select a color. You can choose from the colors in the Color Names box or to enter a hexadecimal number to preview a specific hexadecimal color in the Color Picker. If the color you type is too light or too dark, you can change the color by using the Hue, Saturation, and Lightness sliders. You can adjust the amount of light and dark the color changes through the slider. You may need to adjust all three sliders to get the right color. Font detail If you want to see the exact font you are using, click on the small picture beside the Size box and the specific font will appear. It is
