Library. The New College Library on the main campus of New College of Florida was home to members of the Bethe family. Caroline Bethe, the granddaughter of the library's namesake, Caroline Martin Bethe, and daughter of her sister, Virginia Bethe Porter, knew a lot about her family's history. So, when graduate student Laura Elliott was writing her thesis on Caroline's grandfather, the New College librarian was happy to share Caroline's past research with her. But in a case of the unexpected, Laura turned her attention to the library's founding patriarch, Robert Martin. Caroline's grandfather, Robert Martin, was a professor of mathematics and astronomy who fled revolutionary Paris on March 8, 1791, with his wife, Caroline, and two children
