* **Adobe Creative Suite:** Adobe's flagship photography program for image manipulations. It has three parts: a full-featured, drag-and-drop desktop publishing (DTP) program, a graphics program, and a browser-based image editor. The company introduced the Creative Suite 3 in 2009 and later consolidated the Photoshop and Illustrator applications into a single, integrated program, called Photoshop Elements. Photoshop CS5 is the latest version of the program and is also available in a bundled version that includes free online access to one year worth of Adobe Stock images. This bundled product is called Photoshop Creative Cloud.

* **Photoshop CC:** A digital photography program that includes most of the features of CS5 plus several features from Photoshop CS6. It is marketed toward beginners, and may include bundled cloud-photo storage to help with backup.

* **Adobe Photoshop Express:** A web-based editor that does not require downloading any application. It's a free editor that includes a limited number of photo editing features. It's easy to use and allows for access to more advanced features such as extensive cropping and basic color manipulation.

* **Lightroom:** A program that is a great alternative to Photoshop for RAW photo editing. It is described in Chapter 10 and includes many features that are similar to Photoshop.

* **GIMP:** A freeware, open source, highly customizable, and extremely popular image editor that is similar to Photoshop.

* **Snapseed:** A web-based photo editor that is simple and fast. Like Photoshop Express, it comes as a free download and allows access to advanced tools. It is suitable for very casual users.

* **Krita:** A free open source (GPL), cross-platform (Mac, Windows, and Linux), digital painting and photo editing program that is similar to Photoshop.

* **GIMPshop:** A Photoshop-based plug-in that extends the features of GIMP. It is available for Windows, Mac OS, and Linux.

* **Skitch:** A web-based, free, portable, and fast-loading screen-capture tool that adds a layer to an image. It is similar in function to the free SnagIt screen capture tool.

* **Shotwell:** A free open source (GPL) program that is very similar to GIMP. It is available for Windows, Mac, and Linux

Discovery Ignites Spatial Network in Uganda The University of Nebraska's Rackham Graduate School of Environment and Resources (GRES) and the Non-governmental Organizations (NGOs) Collaboration (NGOC) signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) on April 3 to build a spatial information network in Uganda. More than 30 donors, including African Development Bank (AfDB), the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation (BMGF), the International Development Research Centre (IDRC), the Mellon Foundation, Mercy Corps, the Open Society Institute (OSI) and the International Medical Corps (IMC) provided funding for the project which is now two years old. The online platform showcases geographic datasets, tools, services and knowledge through links to online courses developed by the GRES and the NGOs Collaboration (NGOC), a partnership between GRES and Ugandan non-governmental organizations (NGOs). It will be supported by a national grid computing center in Uganda. "This project is designed to serve as a platform for sharing information about the condition of the environment," said Raphael Kitenge, program officer at the GRES. "The data comes from government reports, satellite imagery, and a variety of sources. We will provide these tools and data sets to Uganda's capacity to do their own data analysis." NGOC intends to broaden the scope of the data, providing a quality standard for use and improving data-quality-monitoring practices. NGOC is already widely used in Uganda. The online platform allows NGOs across the country to access datasets and tools for use in the development of projects or programs. Together, NGOC members and GRES offer over 150 programs and services in the areas of environmental conservation, forestry, disaster management, land resources and livelihoods. GRES is a global leader in geographic information science and, through NGOC, has enhanced the work of its national, regional, and international research centers. The project was first introduced to NGOs through a grant from the AfDB, which is funding the Ugandan national grid computing center. GRES was selected for the partnership from among eight nominees based on the strength of the Rackham International Partnership, which includes a UN University consortium in Germany and

The Friday Planner: The 9-11-03 Flash Report SHR: We are scheduled to release another Flash Report Friday morning. If you want to get breaking business news in front of you each day at 10:30 a.m. (ET), click here to sign up for "The Daily Flash." Transitional housing in the U.S. is expected to grow 6% to $19.2 billion this year, according to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. That means the government will house nearly 8,000 more people needing housing. Housing experts expect the first year of Bush's tax plan to raise about $700 billion, and they project that the plan could eventually increase the deficit by $7.2 trillion over a decade. President Bush will use a rare Friday news conference to talk about the Federal Emergency Management Agency. His comments will come during a rare afternoon news conference before he travels to Japan. C++ Generics in the Browser - yurisagalov ===== dzlobin I really like the idea. We use JS/jQuery a lot in our startup and for all of our user flow work; we do frequent view changes and seem to spend time generating Javascript code as we go. When you have a predefined template library in the file it cuts down on a lot of the generated code. ~~~ flyosity What I don't like is how your C++ template library solution would fail to apply your solution to random web pages. Most pages don't have a "class" wrapper around them for extension. It would fail on pages that have no C++ code that sets the template. For example, if a template uses the Google Maps API to dynamically plot the page, it would fail to apply. ----- pjmlp You forgot to say what the browser is. ~~~ yurisagalov Actually, I added a little more detail at the end. ----- _p6_ Cool hack, but it reminds me of [tricks.com/variable/]( in JS. ----- xk_id
