However, I do not see why my mock is not working correctly. I am trying to find an error in my code (or add a new error) but do not understand why the test is not passing. When I check the array, the index values are matching what I am passing in the check. My test_values array is set in a getModel() function, so I am not passing that in directly. public function testBe($be): void { $model = TestModel::first(); $model->setTest_values([1 => false]); $this->assertEquals([1 => false], $model->test_values); } I am trying to do a this, although in my case this is not the only time it is happening.
