Q: Mamp PHP codeigniter installation I am installing php codeigniter on my local machine by getting the codeigniter installation files with it's installation and upload into local directory. I have created a blog. Now the issue is this can not be done by my system as /usr/bin/php is not there on my system. So please tell me how to install it in a different directory like /usr/local/bin/php

A: I'm assuming you're on a Mac machine. From the MAMP doc page, it says that MAMP installs to /Applications/MAMP/bin/php/php5. The Install PHP page says "This also includes a copy of the Web server, php, sqlite and other components necessary to run php applications." So I would assume that wherever you are running MAMP from, it would be putting this in /Applications/MAMP/bin/php/php5. As for putting it elsewhere, I would imagine doing something like "sudo cp /Applications/MAMP/bin/php/php5 /usr/local/bin/php" EDIT: Just realized you're on Ubuntu. This answer is for the Mac, but the same basic principles apply.

Twilight Princess: A New Legend of Zelda Posted by z-post on September 3, 2011 at 10:54:37 AM CDTQ: Asking "Blah blah blah..." to be given attention I was watching a TED talk/video this morning about setting up a workshop for the next generation of scientists. One of the points was asking students to ask the instructor for time to air out their thoughts/ideas and ask or answer questions. The speaker said one of the good ways to be given a lot of attention is to say the following: ...blah blah blah... At about the two-minute mark I start to think well, no-one gives their thoughts in the TED talks without asking first. How has this phrase fallen out of common use? What would an example be that doesn't have a reason to say so (because it is not something ever said, or someone just replies with "sure, blah blah blah")? A: Saying "Blah blah blah" is not something people often say, but there are lots of terms that don't have perfect analogs in common English, and some of those "colloquialisms" really do follow a fairly regular pattern. Specifically, "Blah blah blah" is a fairly universal way of getting someone's attention for a reason that isn't obvious. You have to be careful about using that one, because it can be seen as rude. Technical Field The present disclosure relates to a motor control device for detecting stator winding temperature in a rotating electric machine and a method for operating the same. 2. Description of the Related Art A motor generally includes a stator and a rotor. The stator includes a bobbin and a stator winding wound around the bobbin. A temperature detecting element may be mounted to the stator so as to detect the temperature of the stator winding. The temperature of the stator winding is, for example, detected by using a temperature sensing element mounted to the bobbin or a temperature sensing element mounted to the stator winding. To reduce power consumption of a motor, a rotor cooling device is needed. As a first option, a heat sink, with which the stator winding is configured to abut, is provided on the temperature sensing element so that the temperature sensing element is cooled by a fan provided at a rear end of the heat sink. However, the temperature sensing element is disposed inside a motor case, the temperature sensing element is in direct contact with windings of the stator winding, and the temperature sensing element is heated by the stator winding. Therefore, accuracy of the temperature detection of the temperature sensing element may be relatively low. In addition, after the temperature sensing element is attached to the motor, it is still necessary to install a specific fan, which may cause a high cost. A second option is to make the stator winding contact the heat sink so that the temperature sensing element may be cooled by the stator
