Find News and Reviews about Far Cry 3 on GameSpot. because of the total immersion in nature, and i learned a lot. Staying at the campsite, it's also possible to learn the history of the different themes of the various caves where you can stay. And there's the importance of the geology of this part of Spain and the difficulty of preserving this rich in this kind of rock. On September we took a plane from San Fernando (close to Málaga) to Granada, where we came in the evening. We had some free time and began a tour of the city taking us to the Royal Chapel of Charles V, which was built in the 16th century. The chapel is built in gothic style and is a very magnificent example of this style. But the most interesting thing of all is that the only thing you can see in this building is the tomb of the former king from Spain, Charles V, who died in 1558. It was the morning of October 1 in the city of Granada, we had a long walk from the center where we visited the beautiful "Calle de Alba". It's a small and charming street where they have a beautiful building that houses the remarkable museum of tapestries where he has some beautiful and interesting pieces from the end of the 15th century to modern tapestries. After this beautiful walk, we went to the famous plaza of the Alba, which is one of the most attractive places in this city. Next we went to the Alhambra, a place of great historical importance, where the palace was built at the end of the 14th century. The construction of this splendid edifice is of gothic style and was built during the reigns of the Catholic Monarchs, Ferdinand and Isabella. Next we went to the main mosque, the only one in a Christian city, with the façade and inside with fountains. And then we went to the incredible Alcazar of the Alhambra. The buildings on this place have more than 700 rooms, with beautiful artistic pieces of art that are worth the visit to this place. It's a palace that contains Islamic art from the 15th and 16th centuries. Finally, we went to Plaza De San Miguel, which is one of the most frequented places in the city center. After all this beautiful walking tour of the city, it was late at night and we decided to go on a night tour in d0c515b9f4
