The game incorporates a set of intelligent controls that are designed to bring the game closer to the original play style of the sport: Goalkeeper Controls Creating a more authentic playing experience, the controls have been redesigned to mirror the goalkeeper controls in FUT. The player will be able to use any of his 6 controls (2 hands) with an on-screen analogue stick to control the goalkeeper. The goalkeeper will react to shots, blocks, and situations in a more authentic way. Offside For the first time in FIFA ever, players will be able to see when they are offside. When a player is caught offside, a visual indicator will appear on the pitch. As the player progresses into his next pass/action, the player will no longer be offside. Kick-Off Returns The new Kick-Off Returns feature will allow players to restart their run without leaving the defensive half of the pitch. The new mechanic is designed to help the ball get into play in a more balanced and realistic way. Defending Defunction Players can now set their defensive shape, positioning and role on the pitch. The Defending Defunction feature allows players to select their own defensive shape, position and role when they are in possession of the ball. Players can use Deflection, Flank, Back, Wingback and Centre Back options to best fit their team's defensive formation. As a primary defender, the new defensive system is designed to help defenders beat their opponent's off-ball movements. Defending Double The Defending Double feature allows players to deploy more than one defender in front of their opponent's attackers. The player is able to select 2 players: a primary defender and a secondary defender. Once the second defender is selected, a dialog will appear showing the direction for both players to go. A visual feedback will indicate the direction in which the secondary defender is supposed to be going. Players can readjust their route by dragging the Defender in the direction they want to go. Players that use Defending Double, should be careful with their positioning and when crossing the centre line. If players are too close to each other, a collision will be triggered. Aggressive Interception Defenders will receive an additional offensive element when they intercept an opponent's ball. Players will be able to slide towards the ball in order to make a clean, aggressive interception. Players will be able to knock away
