The reason why a Trump nomination is good for the GOP

NEW YORK (CNN) — This campaign has been remarkable, but not in the way that it deserves. Since he has announced, Donald Trump has dominated the political universe and secured the Republican Party's nomination. Yet, his campaign has been the only campaign I have ever heard about that my kids and I know about that we absolutely cannot understand. His rallies have been like they are in the movie "Anchorman." From the time when he announced his candidacy, it has been about Trump's ego and his celebrity lifestyle. There have been "billionaires vs. the world” rallies. The rallies have been about Trump, Trump, Trump. There has not been an issue or a policy. No one I have ever met in my life has a conversation that goes like this: “I am voting for Trump because of his policies on X.” His most memorable policy is not actually his policy, but it has become the litmus test for the Republican Party, the Cuba policy. We are almost two years away from the election. This is a bad thing for me as a Democrat because the Republican party has lined itself up for a Trump nomination for a very long time. So how do I get myself out of it? Let me tell you, if I ever thought I could be behind a Republican presidential candidate before this campaign, this is one of the most important things you need to know about me: I am an independent thinker. I am a Michigan native. I was born and raised in Kalamazoo, Michigan. I was nine months old when I moved to New York City. I moved back to Kalamazoo when
