Email Sign Up Tweets from The stage is now set for a potential clash between a pro-choice Democrat and a pro-life Republican in the fight for the congressional seat representing the southern Virginia suburbs of Washington, D.C. Rep. Barbara Comstock, R-Va., and former Virginia attorney general Ken Cuccinelli, who will run as a Republican, are the only two candidates in the race to replace retiring Rep. Mike Rogers, R-Mich., and will be on the ballot for the May 15 primary election. While Comstock has outlined her views on abortion in the past, Cuccinelli has not, but the issue is expected to be one of the fiercest campaigns in the country in 2018. The winner of the race is expected to be on track to win in November in what's likely to be an expensive contest for both sides. Cuccinelli, a conservative jurist, has a lead in the race. He has said he opposes abortion except in cases of rape, incest or where the life of the mother is in jeopardy. He has also said he opposes same-sex marriage. Comstock told CQ Roll Call in June, “I think we can have a balance in our health care of being able to provide health care and being able to protect life and protect the interests of women’s reproductive health care,” a point she later repeated on CNN. “This campaign is going to be very clear about women”
