The Student table has the StudentID as a primary key and the StudentName as the values, the Course table has the CourseID as a primary key and the CourseName as the value. The course can be repeated, that's where the relationship comes in, as you can see, there is a foreign key called CourseID that is referencing the CourseID in the Student table. I am trying to create the course and the student as one entry, is there a way to do this? A: Based on your comments, it sounds like this is what you're trying to do: Student StudentID StudentName ------------------ 1 John Smith Course CourseID CourseName StudentID --------------------------- 1 Accounting 1 Student d0c515b9f4

It will also take place before the Russian Revolution of 1917 and is a tribute to the pioneering work of the IRA and the Russian anarchists in the lead up to the October Revolution in 1917. The plot centres on a British scientist and a Russian revolutionary who join forces to sell the anarchists a bomb, which may or may not work. "First class politics, and the meaning of the word," said Stone about the project. "It really is about subversion - of the state, of society and not only
