While I was at the conference, I had the opportunity to meet and speak with some key people in the industry. When preparing for the conference, I decided to visit with a couple of folks, and spend some time talking about OANDA, who are a key player in the live performance market. Over the last couple of days, I have had the pleasure of speaking with a number of people. While talking with them, it became clear that it would be a good idea to highlight the group I visited. OANDA Like many of the people I spoke with, I know OANDA well. I used them as a reference point for the conference, and as a key point for people wanting to know more about who we are and what we offer. While I was at the conference, I met with Jared Moriarty, the Technical Marketing Manager for OANDA. Jared offered me the opportunity to show off some of the key technologies we use to deliver the world's best live performance. I have also received an offer to visit with Michael Rennie, the Sales Director for OANDA. I am looking forward to hearing more about the company. Liquid Jazz Like many of the other people I spoke with at the conference, Jason Tiberius from Liquid Jazz International was one of the individuals I wanted to meet. Having met with them, I have been given the opportunity to tell their story. Liquid Jazz is an international, full service Broadcast Audio Company. Over the years, they have built an extensive business around delivering audio solutions to broadcasters and events. I spoke with Jason for about an hour, and was able to listen to the entire range of services they have to offer. Jason is one of the key people behind the New York City NY radio and sports broadcasts. As a full service company, they are there to provide audio for New York City - sports, radio, internet streams, news, corporate events, musical acts and more. Jason provided me with a taste of their services, and was one of those on the conference call who wanted

For a successful knockdown, plasmid amounts  $>5 \mu\text{g}/\text{well}$  should be used. Reference Moffat, M., Khoo, C. S. H., and Ghosh, R. (2002). Morpholino antisense oligonucleotides are powerful tools for gene function studies in fish. Embo J. 21:1530-1535. Knockdown affects the developmental stages of the embryos at late stages. Embryos injected with morpholino antisense oligo are fertile. Embryo fertility may be increased if the morpholino antisense oligo is co-injected with fertilized eggs. Females injected with the morpholino antisense oligo produce viable offspring. S2 cells were cultured as described in Methods. Cells were collected in presence of 0.5% sodium dodecyl sulfate (SDS). Whole-cell lysate was extracted in Laemmli sample buffer and subjected to polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis followed by Western blot analysis. Endogenous laminin  $\gamma 1$  was specifically detected with anti-laminin  $\gamma 1$ . Inhibition of laminin  $\gamma 1$  chain splicing was accomplished by the use of a morpholino oligo complementary to a sequence in intron 2 (table 2) which is detected by the MabA13 antibody. The morpholino oligo was designed to inhibit splicing at the 5'-splice site (first arrow) and the branchpoint of intron 2 (second arrow). The blocking of these splicing events results in the retention of the mRNA intermediate and an increase in the level of laminin  $\gamma 1$  mRNA. Knockdown of laminin  $\gamma 1$  results in a reduction of the expression level of the docked form of laminin  $\gamma 1$  and a concomitant increase in the expression level of the undocked form of laminin  $\gamma 1$  which is detected by the MabA13 antibody. This MabA13 antibody can be used for subsequent experiments on laminin  $\gamma 1$  expression regulation. For example 6d1f23a050
