Endocarditis of Mitral Valve Flap Following Implantation of a Late Generation Stentless Bioprosthesis.
Stentless bioprostheses have been used with increasing frequency in clinical practice. Their benefits include hemodynamic and functional superiority over conventional aortic homografts. Late complications, however, have included valve thrombotic endocarditis. In this report, we describe the complication of refractory pin thrombosis of a mitral valve flap in a 57-year-old woman who had undergone mitral valve replacement with a MatrVal (MatrVal Medical GmbH, Reutlingen, Germany) pericard
